Bomber to offer privileged insights

Three premierships as a player, one of those as captain, plus two AFL premierships as a coach, give Mark “Bomber” Thompson a special place in the history of Australian football.

So when he visits our special place for this Saturday night’s President’s Dinner, those in the room can expect privileged insights into the game at all sorts of levels.

Mark Thompson was a fresh-faced kid when he won his first premiership with Essendon in 1984, then repeated the trick the following year playing alongside and against legends of the game like Tim Watson and Leigh Matthews.

By 1993, he was captain of Essendon.

This was the year that Kevin Sheedy “tanked”.

He played the kids, only half expecting the baby-faced James Hird, and the schoolboy Dustin Fletcher, plus a host of other “Baby Bombers” would ever do something as ridiculous as come back from 42 points down in a preliminary final and win a grand final the following week.

Because of our tradition of having top-class speakers at our President’s Dinners, Newtown and Chilwell Cricket Club members have been privileged to hear two versions of what happened at half-time in that preliminary final against Adelaide, the first from Sheedy, the second from Hird.

The third version will be just as interesting, and probably just as different as the other two were from each other.

For the majority of folk in the room this Saturday night however, the main interest will be in decade when Geelong went from being bankrupt off the field and in much the same condition on it to the riches of three premierships, two of them under Bomber.

In 1999 Mark Thompson joined a club that had had its soul ripped out. Everything leaked. The roof at Kardinia Park, the football department.

With Brian Cook and Frank Costa he became part of a triumvirate that didn’t just turn things around, but turned the club into a powerhouse of the AFL.

There were grim days that would have broken the spirit of lesser men than these trio and the good people they had begun assembling around them - galling preliminary final losses, the painful events of 2006.

Mark Thompson stuck out his jaw and copped all the blows knowing that he had in his care the makings of a champion team, one that he shaped and fashioned himself.

It says everything about Bomber that despite all that has happened since, his player still worship their coach.

Of course it didn’t all stop there.

In 2013, Mark Thompson found himself the meat in the sandwich in the supplements scandal at Essendon.

He discovered the game he loved had been taken over by the men in suits who cared more for balance sheets and marketing talk than the welfare of the game and the people who played and coached in it.

As for the truth, who needs that?

That’s a scar that will take time to heal completely, but Mark Bomber Thompson is falling back in love with footy again.

So his generous offer to come and talk about all the things that have marked his career is one that no N&CCC member can afford to miss.

Bogan Bingo – fun-raising and fund-raising all in one mullet-fest

In his best-selling autobiography, STAND YOUR GRAND, Kevin Sheedy noted that while you do try, you can't win premierships every year, but whether it's a footy club or a cricket club, you can have fun every year.

Bogan Bingo on November 28th is just that, a chance to have a stack of fun while helping your club raise money and continue to build towards that special days not far away when the premierships come flooding in.

There are air guitar competitions, jokes, tributes, all sorts of things to make the night special.

And every cent raised goes to making sure that N&CCC can keep down your membership fees for another year, as well as provide the necessary resources to our coaches and players.

For some, coming dressed as a bogan won't be any different from most Saturday nights at the club.

Nor will indulging in bogan behaviour.

For others, and there are a few, it is a chance to descend into another world be-decked in the mullet wig, the flanno and the trackie dacks and also listen to a lot of very bad 1980s music, which was all of it, wasn't it.

If you haven't booked your ticket yet, see Pessie NOW!

FIRST XI lost to East Belmont at Winter Reserve

by Josh Barnes courtesy of the Geelong Advertiser.

MARK Hanley's 80 led East Belmont to an impressive 267 after being sent in against Newtown & Chilwell at Winter Reserve.

Matthew Linekar entered the match on the back of three centuries, but his stunning run of form ended when he fell to Nick McGuane for four. But it was the experience of Hanley that steadied the innings.

Sean O'Neill kept the scoreboard ticking with 63 after returning from overseas, while the 10th wicket partnership of 35 between Ben Spencer (30) and David Lineen (7 not out) could prove costly for the Two Blues.

Newtown was forced to face eight overs late in the day and Ben Knight struck an early blow to leave the team 1-13 at stumps.

A HAT-TRICK as part of a seven-wicket haul from Ben Knight has highlighted East Belmont's crushing victory over Newtown & Chilwell.

Knight's haul helped knock over Newtown for 94 and impressed coach Peter Quick.

"(Knight has) been a pretty handy acquisition since we got him," Quick said.

"He came across as a bit more of a batting allrounder but owing to our depth in batting he's probably become a bit more of a bowling allrounder, which has been a bit of a bonus.

"He's been a consistent player for us and last week he started well and I mentioned in the warm-up how well he bowled last week."

With the game in the balance approaching tea, Knight returned to the attack and ripped open the Newtown batting line-up with a rare hat-trick, thanks to a stunning catch at short leg.

"Chris Bambury had to go in at short leg, he had to borrow the keeper's helmet and the keeper is 16 years old," Quick said.

"He sort of dived full length to catch it and he bobs up throwing his hands up and he's got this tiny little helmet on his head and every body bombarded him and (Knight), it was very funny.

"It was only 20 or 30 minutes before tea and they were 3-70 odd and the next minute they were seven down at tea and the game was sort of over."

After weather intervened two weeks ago, Quick said the win was crucial to East Belmont as they set up their season.

"We needed the win and we knew that, so to get it and cop a little bit of percentage out as well is important," he said.
