

TWO BLUE TRIBUNE

The official organ of the Newtown and Chilwell Cricket Club Inc.

Inc.

New season starts with Bell Post Hill and the battle for the Crane Cup

Season 2004/05 is due to commence this Saturday, October 2nd with the clubs vying for the Neville Crane Trophy in an opening round one day fixture.

The First and Third XIs head up to Myers Reserve to take on Bell Post Hill while the Seconds and Fourths will open their season at Queen's Park.

The first two matches of the season are 50 over one day games from midday to 6pm in the four grades.

New website intranet

Those who have visited the club website recently would have noticed a major difference with the Sportal link replaced by a CricketVictoria based intranet. As we move into the season CV has promised that this intranet, available to all Vic based clubs, will be improved with added features including scores and be more individualised. Our existing news stories have been loaded over to the new site but all attachments have not yet been transferred. The relevant ones will be rolled over as soon as possible. New stories and features will appear as usual as the season rolls on. To download story attachments simply click your cursor on the dark blue covered story link.

Trade Job

Club Sponsor SKILLED is looking for a junior (16-18yo) who would be interested in working in a metal trade's field. The role would be casual through Skilled to start, with a view of it going to an apprenticeship if the person is the right fit. For more details contact

Junior Development Squad

During the winter months a group of fifteen of our U15 and U17 juniors have been involved in the "NCCC 2004 Junior Development Squad".

Six sessions in all were held at the North Geelong Indoor Centre with current NCCC junior coaches Les Sanderson and Gary Simpson being joined along the way by several other "guest coaches" in giving our youngsters some specialised coaching that will hopefully see them get their 2004/2005 seasons off to a flying start.

Guest coaches included Clinton Peake (GCC captain), Bruce Nunn (Barwon Region Cricket Manager), Tim Anderson (ICC Coaching Development Manager) as well as NCCC's very own Greg Wells and Paul Anderson.

Well done to all involved and good luck for the upcoming season.

Note – Junior registration day is this Sunday in the Sporting Complex from 10am.

N&C CCC Season 2004/05 Training

During the early stages of the season until daylight savings comes into effect, senior training will be held on both Tuesday and Thursday nights from 4:30 pm at Queen's Park Sporting Complex.

In the instance of inclement weather, training will still continue in some form so bring along your runners and water bottle to all sessions.

Due to work commitments etc, hard wicket training will only be held on Thursday nights this season but anyone who wishes to come along on Tuesdays are more than welcome to join in with the turf squad.

"The Weird and Wonderful World of the Wolfman"

by James Taylor, First XI Scorer in Hiatus and Resident Dispatcher from the Bendigo Front Lines

Ahoy hoy, as Alexander Graham Bell would say. A little under three months until the cricket season is with us again, so it's probably time to dig the whites out of the back of the car where you threw them on Mad Monday. As for a report on the Gold Coast Assault in April, I'd tell you what happened, but journalistic duty prevents me from naming names. And I also refuse to say anything on the grounds I may incriminate myself.

Speaking of journalism, today marks the end of Day 23 in my career as a reporter at the Advertiser. Yikes. No, not the Bendigo Advertiser (although that's where it is); just the Advertiser. So don't cause any scandals in Geelong, because...I won't write about them. Unless they've got some sort of local angle, in which case I'll happily drag all your names through the mud.

Scandal and controversy seem to be the lifeblood of a newspaper. It's extraordinarily hard to write about nothing. Every day, the public demands fresh news to devour, and the media has to duly provide it. Even if it's utter tosh. Pamela Anderson re-invents herself as a novelist? Come on! But just in case someone out there might want to know that, it gets a run. News is new by definition, after all. Nobody gives a damn about olds. But funnily enough, there's always just enough news to fill up the newspaper every day.

Making things up out of thin air is generally frowned upon. Stephen Glass and Jayson Blair made that mistake, and look what happened to them. More recently, Norma Khouri's novel Forbidden Love has had questions raised about whether the author made the whole thing up. This is what people want in the end, I think: consistency. Nobody cares if you lie or tell the truth, just do one or the other all the time.

This is why the Iraqi Information Minister (or should that be Misinformation Minister?) could get away with telling obvious lies about how his forces were kicking the bejesus out of the Americans. We all knew he was bonkers, so we let him get away with it. But why would you ever want to make what happens in the real world up? I'm assuming Glass and Blair did because they couldn't find interesting stories, but the world's wacky and crazy enough for people to write about it until the end of time. The truth is stranger than fiction.

But the truth has some nasty catches, as well. Of course the media can't get everyone's side of the story before the deadline, so they have to settle for the closest they can get to objectivity at the time. So what the Age thinks is the truth might not be what Steve Bracks thinks is the truth. J. Michael Stracynski put it best: understanding is a three-edged sword - my truth, your truth, and the real truth in between.

Ideally, telling the truth should actually be worth telling. This is why we can always justify a white lie, because those really don't hurt anyone. But some things should be said, or heard, or seen, even if it makes us uncomfortable. I won't even begin to delve into the censorship debate that's been half-heartedly raging around a couple of films released in Australia; if they're rated R18, that's enough protection for me.

But as I said before, people don't want nice, people want consistency. Which is why political correctness drives me up the wall. Some of you may remember a film called What A Girl Wants which came out last year. If not, lucky you. Anyway, the original poster had the fairly smoking Miss Byrnes (when she's of legal age, of course) posing and giving the typical happy-go-lucky peace sign. Now, if you remember, Gulf War II was on at the time. This, of course, made some spineless lackey at Warner Brothers think the poster could be construed as an anti-war protest, and the "offensive" peace sign was airbrushed out of the picture.

Now, this is bad enough, because the film has nothing to do with war, and only a fool would consider the poster to be somehow anti-Iraq war. Heaven forbid we ever have politics and movies mix, Michael Moore notwithstanding. But what really drives me up the wall is the release of an Australian film, Under The Radar, which features Steady Eddy not-so-subtly giving the finger on the poster. Now, I'm a fairly liberal sort of guy, but this seems more offensive than a peace sign. If so, why the hell hasn't that been airbrushed out? If not, why tamper with the What A Girl Wants poster? Nrrr!

So, let's have an end to this dancing around unpleasantness. Keep doing whatever it is you're doing. If you try to please everyone, you'll end up pleasing no-one.

So until I start rifling through Ray Martin's garbage (or has that been done?), remember the words of Kent Brockman from The Simpsons: "At the risk of sounding unpopular, this station is placing the blame firmly on YOU, the viewer!"

Anything you say will be misquoted and used against you James "still looking away and snapping back" Taylor

Once again this season, one of the main areas that is of huge importance to the club is the professional manner in which we approach our cricket. This is not only reflected by the results we put on the board, but also by the manner in which we conduct ourselves both on and off the field. Presentation is a key factor in this, and for this reason there is a range of training and pre-game warm up apparel that is to be worn by all players. The club has subsidised the cost of this apparel, largely due to the generosity of our sponsors, and is now available for purchase. All players are expected to be wearing it by the commencement of the first round and the cost to you is only $30.00 for the package which includes both the training shirt and shorts (this would be in excess of $100.00 if you were to go and purchase them yourselves). If you wish to purchase a second set... the price is $45.00. If you still have your set from last season and would like a second set... you can still purchase them at the "second set" price.

Don't let your club down by not looking the part. Every aspect of the club is vital to our ongoing success, and the way in which we portray ourselves is directly linked to the results we achieve on the ground. Show what a strength we are and be proud to wear the colours.

In addition to this, all 1st and 2nd XI players are to wear creams again this season which are now available from DeGrandi Cycle & Sport... as will club jumpers. The shirts (both creams and whites) will already be embroidered with the club logo ready to wear on game day as all players are to have a NCCC logo on their playing shirt.

Other optional apparel which will be available from the club includes:

N&CCC Polo Shirts - $50.00
N&CCC Ties - $30.00
N&CCC Caps - $30.00

- Concession Membership: Full time student, Unemployed, Apprentice
- Social Membership: Non playing member
- Junior Membership: Either playing or eligible to play in a junior team

If you have any issues paying in one lump sum please discuss payment options with Tony Marinelli.

All membership payments are due in full by 25th November 2004.

Late Payment

For those players whose membership was not received before the due date in the 2003/2004 season, they will have an accelerated membership deadline of 11th November 2004, these players will be notified.

Incentives – As a reward for early payment we have the following incentives on Senior & Concession memberships:

Payment Receipt Date	Incentive
7th October 2004	2 Drink Cards (5 free drinks per card: - soft drinks, wine, beer)

Once again there will be EFTPOS facilities available after training on Thursday 7th October. If you are wishing to pay by credit card or EFTPOS, please ensure you do so on this night as it is the only time these facilities will be available.

As part of our clubs administration we need to keep our records up to date. Please attach the membership form overleaf with ALL membership payments.

Regards,
General Committee
