Fourths fly flag against North

A patient half century by Mark Ainsworth was key to the Fourth XI's three wicket win – the only one against the Magpies - as the Pearce-Hynes Trophy continued its residency at North Geelong.

Dropping into two-day cricket mode, Ainsy's 59 took 108 balls and was delicately leavened with seven fours.

Just as he does with the club's books, he knows how to get the balance right.

Patience was a key part of Max Inderberg's unbeaten innings too, as with Jack Hastie, he was one of those delightful WhatsApp countdowns crafted by Levi Pritchard-West, who the week before had taken three inexpensive wickets.

It was 11 off 18 when Levi began his commentary, then nine from 12, followed by a couple of dots.

By the start of the last over, it was four from six, three from five, and then the final message, Fourths win.

The Third XI went within one wicket of getting the six points at Shaw Oval.

Chasing the Two Blues 9-265, which featured half-centuries to Rod Kiddle and Hunter Norman, back from surgery, North was 9-188 at stumps, with Brendan Twaddle, Levi Irving and Adam Kalz the leading wicket takers.

For the First XI, Jorden Lewis produced the star turn on day one at KFC Oval, taking five-for.

Since he was eight and came on for the Sixth XI to take a catch as substitute fielder, the smile on his young face like split melon, Jordie has always been there, on plastic, on turf, to do whatever the club asks of him.

He was helped against North by some brilliant catching from Ronnie McKenna in the field, with Tom Patterson making his debut in the Ones and keeping.

Tom was presented his cap by his Fourth XI premiership captain, Adam O'Connor, and First XI premiership captain from a different time, Rod Kiddle.

"Very proud moment," said Adam O'Connor.

Ian Hastie, another club stalwart said: "Congratulations Tom, a proud moment for us all.

"Having spent so many years watching you grow and mature into the fine young man and cricketer has been a pleasure and one that I have enjoyed immensely."

All as a proud father, club servant and sponsor, Shaun Patterson, captured the moment for posterity with his faithful long lenses.

NCCC dismissed North Geelong for 249 with Nick Burke (pictured above bowling Alistair McCann) chipped in with four wickets, and in the overs before stumps on day one, lost two wickets, Sam Mitchell and Archie Bain.

On day two, only two batters made it into the 20s, the acting skipper Paddy McKenna, and Chay Deary, who was 28 not out while there were four ducks at the other end during his unbeaten tenure, the Two Blues all out for 96.

Doug Bergamin's half century and 42 to Oscar Dowling were the centrepieces of the Second XI's 211 on day one out there.

Sam Taylor with four wickets and Lewis Povey with three kept the Twos in the game, but a stout late partnership got North home by two wickets.

The Fifth XI lost to South Barwon.

Chasing 9-251, they were all out for 113.

Things were more propitious the week before against North Geelong, the Two Blues scoring 3-205 with Grant Whiteside and Mihir Patel scoring half-centuries.

Rex Suvoltus and Ben Harmon, both with three wickets, did the damage with the ball as the Magpies were dismissed for 163.

Despite the loss, the Fifth's remain on top of the ladder, with the Seconds, Thirds and Fourths also well within finals contention.

North takes the points in easy win by Wes Cusworth

Day 1...

A season-high equalling 79 from import Phil Visser headlined North Geelong's impressive 249 against Newtown and Chilwell, although the South African concedes he never really felt comfortable against a Two Blues attack that superbly exploited a responsive track at KFC Oval.

"It was a pretty tricky wicket, I never truly felt in," a circumspect Visser said post-game.

"I don't think any of the boys felt that comfortable apart from Curtly Balshaw who was able to make it look pretty easy today."

Visser struck nine boundaries and a six in his 133-ball contribution while Balshaw struck at a rate of 65 in his 67 from 103 balls; his innings punctuated by 11 fours and a maximum.

Seamer Jorden Lewis made the Magpies earn every run with an outstanding 5-58 in just his second first XI game of the season, while emerging paceman Nick Burke was another to impress with 4-42 from 16 overs.

"He (Lewis) was just putting it on a good spot the whole day and it was pretty difficult to score from him," Visser said.

Entering the game without impact opener Sam Hall, crack all-rounder Andrew Fergusson and wicketkeeper Adam

Costello, the Magpies would have been disappointed to be bowled out in just over 70 overs were it not for a crucial counter-attack that saw the Two Blues lose 2-22, thanks to an electrifying spell from paceman Dale Kerr (2-13).

"We were actually thinking about declaring with 10 overs to go, so it actually worked out pretty well that we were bowled out and had a crack at them for that 30-minute period," Visser said.

"The fact that we were able to make 249 without a number of our important players shows that we have really good depth at our club.

Day 2...

North Geelong has showcased its incredible bowling depth on the way to inflicting a heavy first innings defeat of Newtown and Chilwell at KFC Oval.

Resuming at 2-22 in pursuit of the Magpies' 249, the Two Blues upper order succumbed to the visitors seam attack of Dale Kerr (2-34) and Brad Apps (3-27) before spinners Alistair McCann and Liam Biddiscombe chimed in to sweep the back half of the innings with 2-4 apiece.

"The fast bowlers have been doing the job for us all season and haven't left many wickets for the spinners to chip in with," McCann mused post-game.

"Brad Apps may not be as quick as Dale (Kerr), but he stands the seam up pretty much every ball and it's hard to face as he's got that ability to nip it either way.

"Dale has that extra length and then has a pretty quick bouncer, so as a batsman you can't just hop onto the front foot every ball because that possibility of a bouncer is lurking in the back of your head."

Apart from Pat McKenna (26), all-rounder Chay Deary demonstrated the greatest resistance with a hard-fought 84-ball, undefeated 28.

The Magpies returned to the crease later in the day, striking a quickfire 7-169 from just 29.3 overs.

"Over the past few weeks anywhere below number six has been starved of a hit," McCann said of North's decision to bat a second time.

"The best sort of training is what you can get in the middle.

"Also, we didn't want to run the risk the likes of Dale (Kerr) or 'Matho' (Tom Mathieson) hurting themselves if we were going for an outright."

Ned Cooper (27), Layton McCann (32) and Phil Visser (28) all got starts, while Alistair McCann belted an unbeaten 31 from 24 balls.

Noah Guida claimed 3-21 for the Two Blues.

Debutante Tom Patterson takes his first catch in the Ones dismissing Phil Visser off the bowling of Nick Burke.

Jordie Lewis claims his first Michelle in the Ones, brilliantly caught by Ronnie McKenna at cover.

The finest Marino

All-round athlete Lauren Marino is not a batter to be kept down for long.

That duck next to her name in the game against Lethbridge in early January would have irked.

Such that the following week, in the First XI's comprehensive win over the East Belmont Razz, there she was again, 50 not out.

Susan Meaney continued her rich run of form with 33 not out and Bianca Duff also made it into the 30s in the Two Blues 1-135.

Three runouts involving Alison Wedding and Erin White knocked over the Razz's top order before Belinda Milverton cleaned up with 4-10.

Going into last weekend's bye, the First XI is sitting in third as it attempts to emulate its inaugural performance last summer, making the final, then going one better.

The Second XI, travelling out to Lara, just couldn't muster enough runs against the home side, with only Carly White reaching double figures.

Despite that loss, the Two Blues Seconds remain in third spot and again look to go deep once finals come around.

Tonight at training the club gathered for a very special presentation, the unveiling of the Ian Poulton Scoreboard.

Mark Stoneham and Ian's son Ash spoke of Mr P's great influence on the club, from coaching, captaining, presidency and much much more.

You'll now find Ian helping out on Tuesdays and Thursdays at trainings, as well as faithfully scoring the A Grade match every Saturday 🍷🍷

As a club we are glad to recognise Ian in this small way, and thank him for all he has done over the years 🍷🍷

Ian Robert William Poulton played 177 matches with the N&CCC from the mid 1960s into the 80s. In his 89 1sts XI and 80 2nd XI he amassed 3873 runs as an opening bat and was vice captain of the 1979/80 2nd XI premiership. Congrats on this great acknowledgement 'LC'.

Dan Lawrence called up to replace Harry Brook for India Tests

Former Two Blue Daniel Lawrence has been called into the English squad for the five-Test series in India.

England's preparations for the series were rocked by the news that Harry Brook will miss at least a section of the series.

An initial ECB statement specified that Brook would miss the entire series but that detail was later removed from the ECB website.

There remains a chance that Brook, who is returning home for personal reasons, will fly back out to India for the later stages of the tour.

The ECB statement also asked for the media and public to respect the Brook family's request for privacy at this time.

Lawrence, a Merriman Medallist with the Two Blues before returning to England to make his Test debut, has been called up in Brook's place.

He was most recently seen during the Big Bash opening the batting for the Melbourne Stars.

The 26-year-old hasn't represented England since Joe Root's final Test in charge as captain back in March 2022 against West Indies in Grenada.

That said, Lawrence was a regular presence in squads across the 2023 summer without getting a game.

There was great disappointment among Two Blue supporters of Dan who went to England hoping to see him play in one of the Ashes Tests.

He was also strangely, giving his performances for the English Lions, left out of the senior XI when England toured Australia.

He wasn't included in the England XI for the first Test, with Jonny Bairstow preferred as a specialist batsman.

Perhaps Dan's luck will change with his signing for Surrey after a decade of service to Essex, which included him being awarded the Gooch/Insole Scholarship that brought him to Newtown.

Congrats as debutante Tom Patterson takes his first catch

Victoria and Victas revisited

Following the publication of a couple of pages from an ancient scorebook on Facebook in January to help Chisa celebrate his 72nd birthday, people asked for the story behind those pages.

For the 20th anniversary of the Sixth XI's fabled one wicket win over Grovedale a few years back, Chisa's co-captain wrote a memorable work called Victors and Victas. (Chisa declined because he doesn't like talking about himself, no sniggering.)

Victors and Victas

by Phillip Morgan, co-captain,
NCCC 1999/2000 Sixth XI Premiers

It was probably Neville Cardus who first said a good five-day Test is like a great symphony; replete with an overture, serene movements and stirring crescendos.

A Sixth XI grand final, like the one played between NCCC and Grovedale over two days in March, 2000, at Oberon High, was more your rock opera – whether slow or fast, and it had both, it was raw.

Grovedale entered the contest with more baggage than a Qantas carousel. They were known as the lawn movers, not because they had been victors in the past, despite their infamous skills with the Victa.

Additionally, Chisa had singlehandedly reigned, or was that rained, over them once?

And these two days at Oberon High, he was seeking one more win, complete with new hips, and the lawn mowers were back for revenge – hot, cold, anyway they could serve it up.

Always great tossers, Grovedale won the flip of the coin, and as you do, batted first.

They reached 30 before Ando got a couple either side of a run out to reduce them to 3-35.

Thereafter there was the proverbial steady procession of wickets, interrupted by Macca, who after being dropped, belted his way to 70 before the great man Chisholm uprooted all three stumps with his 700th wicket.

Hip, hip hooray, and hip, hip hooroo. For a side that featured three century makers that season, 194 shouldn't have been all that insurmountable, but after a couple of dubious lbws another of these proverbial steady procession things was underway.

Enter Hoodie to do a Macca, sending the ball in the general direction of the Surf Coast Highway on his way to a 63 that oh so should have been a century – one that would have saved the finger-nails of eight of his teammates.

There was another Macca, too, a real one: our Meggsie, whose 24 is too often overlooked when wise and not so wise men gather to talk about their past deeds.

By now it was tense, it was raw. And we're just talking about the infighting amongst the lawn mowers, in contrast to the measured calmness among the batters, which might have been unmeasured a little bit when first Meggsie, then Trevor departed: 9- 174.

As folk came from all around as word of the contest had spread, this was the moment for Chisa, entering not entirely gracefully down the old hill at Oberon they replaced with terraced seating so that blokes didn't roll into bat anymore.

His NCCC cap sat proudly if slightly askew on his head, his tone was unruffled as he met the not out batsman halfway, as is the appropriate practice, with this cri de couer: "Well let's do it."

It deserves to be writ as large in cricket folklore as Spofforth's "this thing can be done" - and will be at least for the next few paragraphs.

Because the thing was done, mostly through Chisa's gentle caresses and occasional swipes, mostly with the willow, but occasionally he might have used lawn mower-speak to make a point.

Those hips, still settling into their sockets, turned twos into singles, and threes into twos, before a relieving four, and the precious byes after Grovie's first choice Aunt Sally hurled the gloves at his teammates, who had been sledging him even more than they sledged Chisa and his partner and said: "Well find someone who can do a better job!"

They couldn't and discreet leaves became as good a scoring chance as hooks off the eye-browns as the lawn mowers turned to their young quick after their old one ran out of petrol, which clearly wasn't Caltex.

Soon enough, it was bye byes. The winning runs though, came off the bat, Chisa's.

Then Grovie, their desperation writ so large it was a stand-up comedy routine, tried to claim a dubious run-out after the score was passed and both batters did what batters out there do when the winning runs are hit – embraced in the middle.

One of those batters, who had been declared a coward despite standing firm for two hours against all that Grovedale could hurl at him, vocally and otherwise, decided that the time for quietly ignoring it all had now passed.

It was rock and roll, it was raw, but it was ultimately drowned out by a mightier roar as the lawn mowers headed for their various ride-ons for the long journey home and the victors, as distinct from Victas, assembled to have their photos taken.

And cheer, and laugh, the always potent, last laugh - and sing, too.

This was rock opera and then some - Pete Townsend could not have said it better if he had included Brum ba rump ba ra
